Discussion points:

- Are quality raw materials important in all cases of value creation from by products?
- In order to maximise use of marine resources, are there uses for contaminated and poor-quality catch in this industry?
- How important is traceability?
- How can we educate farmers, fishermen and processors on the importance of premium catch and quality in order to be able to better use the byproducts?
- How can we better connect R&D and fisheries regarding fish byproduct utilisation?
- What examples of good business do we have in byproduct utilisation?
- What is/could be the role of Government in full utilisation?
- Is fish protein (from byproducts) unique in some way and can we see the demand for it increase?
